Liberty Coach - The world's premier motor coach builder

A example of a Liberty luxury motor coach showing the slide-outs.

For a quarter of a century Liberty Coach has been producing what are arguably the finest custom motor coach conversions in the world. Its customers include film stars, major recording artists and top sports celebrities. Quality and the pursuit of excellence is everything at Liberty's North Chicago facility. In addition to a 40,000 square foot assembly area, the company has in-house cabinet making, upholstery, plumbing, electrical and mechanical departments plus its own foundry.

No Liberty motor coach is the same. Each one is custom built and hand crafted to meet the specific needs of its discerning clientele and only the finest components and materials will suffice. Each Liberty motor coach uses as its 'base' a Prevost chassis and shell. Prevost (a Volvo subsidiary) is generally regarded as the leading bus and coach builder in North America.

Although a Liberty Coach is some 45 ft long by 8.5 ft. wide, extra space is achieved by powered slide out units that can virtually double the size of the lounge area. In order to save weight and ensure good 'on the road' performance, Liberty makes extensive use of DIAB sandwich panels for the ceilings and interior walls rather than the heavy plywood favored by some of its competition. In addition to their weight saving benefits, the DIAB panels provide a much higher level of thermal and sound insulation. They also exceed the Motor Vehicle Standard Code 302 for flame retardancy. Furthermore, the panels can be quickly installed by Liberty using conventional woodworking tools.

Liberty has also found that the smoother finish of the sandwich panels greatly reduces the risk of wall coverings and fabrics being damaged by snagging during installation. As the sandwich panels do not absorb water, there is no risk of them warping or becoming damp.
